AFTER HITLER'S FALL

Lord Cranborne, on May 21st, 1942, made a statement on behalf of the British Government regarding British post-war policy vis-à-vis Germany.

“Justice is one of the things for which we are fighting the war; justice first for the peoples enslaved by Germany, justice for ourselves, justice for Germany and justice stern and unflinching for those Germans guilty of the abominable crimes we have witnessed.

“We regard the Nazi Leaders as gangsters whose word is not to be trusted and whose hands are stained by unmentionable crimes. While the Nazi Leaders are in power in Germany there can be neither peace nor justice in Europe.

“The policy that was adopted after the last war is not the same as that outlined in the Atlantic Charter. The policy after the last war was calculated, if not, altogether intended, to penalise Germany economically as well as militarily. The conception of the Atlantic Charter is a completely different one. It is an absolute determination to prevent Germany or any other aggressive nation from again achieving a position to inflict such another catastrophe upon the world. But there is no intention to discriminate against Germany from the economic point of view.”

What this demands from the German people was made clear by Sir Stafford Cripps in a special message to Germany given over the BBC on May 11th, 1942:

“Hitler won his first victories in Germany – against the Trade Unions, against the Churches, against the German people. This World War began in Germany – and must be ended in Germany... We are all soldiers in the great Army of Freedom which includes all countries. Some have weapons, the best weapons in the world. Others are unarmed. But all can act, all can strike – for victory. None can remain neutral. Everyone must show through his deeds where he stands; whether against us and freedom, or by our side in the great army of the world of the future.”

IN THE WEST

The R.A.F. attacks on Germany are only the first phase of the Anglo-American offensive. England and America are working day and night to prepare the second phase.

IN THE EAST

The first nine months of the Russian war cost Germany more casualties than the 4 years of the First World War. What will the second nine months cost Germany in casualties? The whole world knows that Germany's ultimate defeat is sure.

CAN THIS SENSELESS SLAUGHTER BE STOPPED IN TIME?

Once again the British Government, in the speech of Lord Cranborne of May 21st and the special message of Sir Stafford Cripps of May 11th, has clearly shown the only way.

1. The war which Hitler will try to prolong for years must be shortened by Germans themselves.
2. The regime of organised gangsterdom which Hitler and his accomplices imposed on Germany must be overthrown by Germans themselves.
3. Germany must take its place alongside the oppressed countries, who are each fighting to rebuild a state based on the respect for national and individual rights.

The statements reproduced on the other side, as well as all similar statements of British Statesmen, have either been kept completely from the German people by the Hitler Government, or have been presented in a distorted way.
